Convivial Conversation and Cuisine for Williams Faculty, Staff and Community Members

The Board Corner

August 2020

Dear Faculty Club Members-

As you are no doubt aware, Williams is opening up slowly with limited access to buildings and services. The Faculty House will not be open for any meals or activities for the foreseeable future.

Due to this inability to host in-person programs, the Faculty Club Board has decided not to send any invoices to community members until we are able to hold events in the building.

This said, the Faculty Club is still here as an entity, and the activities we sponsor will change with the times. The Board is busy brainstorming about virtual events that we can enjoy together, in large groups, and some on a more intimate scale. Stay tuned to the Faculty Club website at: faculty-club.williams.edu/events and email announcements concerning future programming. In an effort to be more sustainable by printing less, the Board is collecting email addresses so that you can receive the newsletter electronically. If you would prefer this option, send your email address to hf3@williams.edu.

On a positive note, Professor James McAllister, Fred Greene Third Century Professor of Political Science, has graciously agreed to present a virtual talk on the 2020 Presidential election. The date is to be determined.

Stay well and enjoy the rest of the summer!

Enjoy Williams' public art collection, from home or out in the sunshine

The Williams College Museum of Art has gathered images and descriptions of public art across the campus to enjoy online or during your own self-guided walking tour.

WCMA has also partnered with The Clark Art Institute and MASS MoCA to produce a Google Maps walking and biking tour of public art installations in Williamstown, Adams, and North Adams.

Making Club Connections

Do you have ideas for ways that Faculty Club members can connect when we can't meet face-to-face?

Would you like to propose a virtual event based on common interests, hobbies, or just to socialize?

Please send your thoughts to Alison O'Grady at aogrady@williams.edu.
