Convivial Conversation and Cuisine for Williams Faculty, Staff and Community Members

Board Corner

Dear Faculty Club Members,

Fall is here! Time does indeed move too quickly. But this is good since it affirms the cycle of life which many of us were deprived of over the past couple of years. So, onward and upward!

The Board hosted our first Friendly Friday of the school year on September 2nd with more than 60 community members, faculty, staff and retirees in attendance. The day was warm, the food was delicious, and the conversations were lively. Several departments and colleagues attended together, celebrating the start of the new school year. Let's try to encourage this sense of community in the coming year.

October 14th is the next Club event; a Family Friendly Cookout co-sponsored by the Spouses & Partners Office. Children are welcome—not often the case for Faculty Club activities—so this is a rare opportunity to have your children join you for this special event. Tours of the Faculty House will be offered, and some games for children of all ages will be on hand. Here's hoping for beautiful fall weather and a good turnout!

Please make plans to attend a talk with Provost Eiko Maruko Siniawer, Friday, January 13th, 5pm-7pm. She will discuss her new book, Waste: Consuming Postwar Japan, available through Cornell University Press. All members of the Williams and local community are welcome and refreshments will be served.

Faculty Club Board member and local artist Jack Leavey has offered to display a painting that served as his entrance exam to the United Scenic Artists Union in the 1980s. It is an awesome painting that we hope to hang in the Faculty House Living room sometime in the next few months as a temporary exhibit. Jack will give a talk about his work at a date to be determined so stay tuned!

We hope to see you soon!
